The Limit's Limit

The door of a local blind pistol shop wide open tonight and as the owner of a horse stood in the bar enjoying a refreshing intake, his hound dog walked in, and leaning his head over the bar was served a drink also. That poor animal waited for the first time in his life.

Another session of the Pass Bootleggers' Association convened at Coleman today. The guests were Mayor Johnon of Coleman, Henry Zuk and several Angelos, of Blairmore; Mat Masino, of Frank, and others. Mr. Barker, of Cardston, was judge of play. His decisions were not at all popular, even to the poor bootleggers. Some who had "erred and strayed from the ways" and were fined a few days previously were in a measure pardoned, one chap to the extent of receiving a refund of $100. There were other things transpired at the meeting which recalls the fact that justice as meted out in The Crows' Nest Pass is not at all conducive to satisfaction to the public or happiness to the authorities. We regret that we have not time to deal with the amount of real "rot" that is going on, but the occasion oportunity may arrive soon.

J. W. MacDonald, Crown Prosecutor of Macleod; J. E. Gillis and L. H. Putnam, of Blairmore, were legal lights in attendance.

To Send Doctors, Nurses and Medicines

Funds raised in the Armistice Day Campaign for European relief, to be held in Alberta and in every other part of the British Empire on November 11th, will be used for the purpose of sending doctors, nurses and medicines to the most needy countries, to prevent relief from being sent to those countries and to introduce the best methods of sanitation and hygiene as a means of preventing the spread of infection. These measures will require the co-operation, under authority of the various states, of large staffs of trained experts and workers in sanitary science.

Eleven million of the children of Europe now fatherless, face the next few years without hope of adequate care unless outside assistance is given, according to Dr. Livingston Farrand, chairman of the central committee of the American Red Cross, who has recently returned from Europe. The people of Alberta will be asked to do their share, in common with other portions of the British Empire, in assisting these children. Poland has half a million orphans; Czechoslovakia, Austria and Hungary have millions of orphans. Five thousand were found recently wandering homeless and, on the point of starvation, in the Ruthenian Mountains.

It is estimated that in Galicia there is only one doctor for every 150,000 inhabitants. In several other countries, according to a bulletin of the British Empire War Relief Fund, similar conditions prevail, and expert medical advisors of the Red Cross Society predict that, unless checked by effective aid and drastic preventive measures, typhus will spread to an alarming degree throughout the world. Governments have now rendered assistance in supplying food to the famine stricken. The private citizens of the British Empire, through the Red Cross Society, are therefore asked to concentrate on the menacing problem of disease and its attendantills.

Fined For Non-Compliance With Health Act

Three charges were laid and three convictions were registered locally under the Provincial Health Act on Wednesday. Two of the three parties were fined $5 and costs each; the third party paid a fine of $10 with costs. All three had been warned to clean up their premises in compliance with the Health Act, but failed to do so.

This should serve as a warning to the many others whose premises are in a disgraceful condition and a menace to the health and safety of the community.

Mrs. Paden returned to Tud Creek on Tuesday.

Firebosses Had Meeting at Fernie

The Western Canada Firebosses' Association met at Fernie on October 18. Bro. Phillips, as chairman, opened the proceedings with a suitable address.

Bro. F. Love, of Hillcrest, secretary of the past year, followed by giving his report for the same and outlining in future policy and platform.

Report of officers were delivered by R. Holmes, of Coleman; H. Ball, of Michel; and President Rutledge, of Fernie.

First business dealt with was in regard to forming a local office. Motion moved and seconded that the head office be located at Hillcrest, Alberta, where it was carried.

Second, sub-districts were apportioned and their boundaries defined.

Election of district officers was as follows:

President—R. Holmes, of Coleman.

Vice-President—G. Surrey, of Hillcrest.

Secretary—F. Love, of Hillcrest.

Treasurer—J. T. Griffiths, of Coleman.

These officers are elected to serve for the period ending July, 1921, when the next annual convention will be held, the decision as to place of meeting being left in the hands of the members.

For capita tax of fifty cents per member per month, payable monthly.

The convention adjourned at 1 p.m. At 1:30, after resuming, the chairman delivered a short address on prohibition, which occasioned some little friendly discussion.

A vote of thanks to Secretary F. Love for the able manner in which he has carried out his duties during the past year, in face of the keenest opposition, was carried.

He was again called upon to outline what should be the intentions and purposes of the Association. These are as follows:

To organize every person holding a third class certificate, whether working on or not.

To ask for recognition, and to press for it until it is granted.

To organize the various sub-districts and their locals.

All agreements to be dealt with through the head office and to have the consent of the members.

Locals are expected to try to settle their own differences, before submitting same to head office.

Locals are to be encouraged to affiliate, if in agreement to do so, and to form a bond of friendship with them and with all persons holding a third class certificate, whether working on or not.

To review the Mine Act from time to time, as no persons working in mines are more concerned with the Act than are miners.

To consider the question of certificates of transferable.

To take into consideration the law, social, moral and financial, under which we have to live.

Mr. Love referred to a statement made that day that the Association must not take issue with the men in any strike, and remarked that it is a hard proposition, as they are deciding factors to whom the bulk of the members shall go.

He repeated that he is a deadly foe to strikes, until all other means have failed, but he is convinced that the sooner the control of the miners over the wages of the members be removed, the better it will be for all concerned.

"They want to take this away from us," he mused. "All the time. And the d—villains want to steal her away from all this. Well, let them try."

He turned, lifting his head to catch the low night-calls that floated from the far-away corridors of the deep wood. The forest was breathing its nocturnal song—a hushed chant, interspersed with the notes of wild things that pranced and foamed and wedged their gladness after the manner of their kind. The shrill bark of a fox sounded from neither swale, and a wretched bird had a little way into the thicket a broad of partridges huddled, peeping with plaintive voices.

"I guess it's a good place very well when all it means to us."

Paisley turned and strode on through the scantly wood-frame along the East shore until he came to an open space, nearly a acre. A dim light twinkled from the windows of a log-house, and a couple of dogs came forward with fierce yappings which changed to whines of welcome as they recognized their master.

The door of the house flew open, and a woman, whose frame filled the doorway completely, sent a scolding command out to the dogs.

"D—d fool! you!" she commanded, "come in here! once or I'll break your no-account backs with this poker."

"Night, Mrs. Declute," called Paisley, "An' inder."

"An' der," rasped the woman, "you hum! 'Cause if you be, Bill Paisley wants 'n' know it."

The house was nudge aside and Declute's grunting face peered out into the night.

"Come right on in, Bill," invited the lone inhabitant, ironing up the steps against the house, and hung a spindly specimen of buck newly killed.

On the floor of the house lay a smaller deer already skinned and now disected by the bushwhackers.

Three chairs of various sizes sat about the carcass, each munching a piece of corncake from a chubby fist.

"How's the babies, marn?" asked Paisley, carefully stepping through and over the wide-eyed little Declutes and sitting down on a stool near the fireplace. "An'der, two deer in an afternoon and such bad weather, eh?"

"I'm sorry, I tried, An'der," big'er'n th' one outside. Shot about an inch too high, though. But I trashed him down an' I'll get him in th' mornin'. Might have killed a dog too. Had a good chance, but I didn't take it."

"Zacchus has got a teach o' pisin'-ivy," said the woman. I'm treatin' it with sassafras 'le an' polash. How've you been yourself, Bill?"

"Pasin' and sleepin' like a babe, thankee," replied Paisley. "What I dropped round for, I used to find out when you think of the boys, town-fellers, are actin'." Did Hallibur or Watson make you any offer for your timber?"

"Yes, they did, but I didn't accept any offer. They wanted three hundred dollars for the big stuff on my place out to two or two and a half. Said 't' you and McTavish and Peck, and most of the others had taken an offer that I made you yours, and I said t' the fellier, 'If this other chaps see it that way I guess I'll see it that way, too.' I'm to take a deal of judgment when I tote these firs out next Saturday, an' they're firs, I guess, will give me another deal and the money."

"Who did you see?" asked Paisley. "The timber-dealers? Sure, he says, 't' you know. 'I'll be ready for you when you come, an' say he,'

"Don't tell any o' your neighbors, 'cause we're payin' more'n we are them; an' you won't like it if they know."

"I don't like it if they know this way have wanin'." Ander t' keep dark, said the woman. "I ain't takin' kind like it lettin' the timber go anyway. We don't really need no more timber. An' we got enough traps and shootin' for our wants, and if they come in here what are they goin' to do t' our property? That's what I want to know."

Paisley took a piece of tobacco and shrugged his shoulders.

"Ander," he asked, watching the trapper roll up the green hide, "how much will you take in fur and deer meat, last fall?"

"He shade four hundred and three dollars," answered the wife proudly.

"Well, then, let me tell you something," said Paisley, tapping the side of his rifle impatiently with his knuckles. "Just as soon as you take Snythe's money your trappin' days and all other days are over here, for all time. They have you just when you want to get the rest of us. Once they get hold of your deer, you can whistle. This land is worth thousands more'n they have. Hallibur's mill done for the m—h—trappin'? You know, you know. They'll drive the furs off and they want to do that."

Declute arose from the floor.

"If I thought that—" he commenced; but his wife broke in:

"If you short! Just as if you don't tell me who I am, I suppose. Didn't I tell you that I surprised them fellers, and don't Bill Paisley know where?"

She righted up, Ander, an' don't you think I'm right? You no right to without seem' Bill here!" Big Mac, anyway."

"But I wasn't goin' to, Rachel," drawled Declute. "I was goin' over to see Mrs. Watson, and I was left on in Bill on the war over. Don't you get too dang'd crusty, wife?"

The ponderous woman waved a hand toward the progeny on the floor.

"You, David an' Moses an' Zacchus," she commanded, scramble out o' th' road instantly. "I'm wantin' to get over t' the cabin."

"I'd better stay and sleep with Bill," said Boy. "Somewhos I'd like to have, and we could make an early start in the mornin'."

"I guess he was a mite scared across the room and secured a paper from an infer redress of the home-built cupboard."

"Bill Paisley," she said, passing the paper over to the visitor, "you're goin' to keep this here deed for me ah?"

"Ander, ain't I right? Ander?" she nodded, the corner of her mouth drawn down warningly.

"It's safe, so, ma, in course," consented Ander.

"Good idea," grinned Paisley, folding the paper and placing it in his pocket.

"I'm bound to know that you're gonna come along with me," he said, "so you come along with me."

"I'll look in on the rest of the Bushwhackers and see if we can't get them, too."

Declute glared at his spouse. She snorted, and with much acerbity the little man arose.

"Don't know as I'll be much of a help to you, Bill," he laughed, "but I'll be there to help you, I know."

It was midnight when Paisley opened the door of the McTavish home and with a voiceless laugh waded the bundle of deeds above his head. The candle was burning dimly in the wide fireplace, and almost dead. Boy sat before it, alone, looking thoughtfully into its depths. Paisley crossed over to him and placed the documents in his hands.

"They can't get the timber without the deeds," he chuckled, "and to get the deeds I guess they'll have to get you, eh?"

Boy caught his friend's hand and pressed it. He tried to speak, and noting his feelings, Paisley drew forth his pipe and filled it as he gave, in an undertone, an account of his great plan.

"I guess all the Bushwhackers will have reason to thank you, Bill," said Boy. "I ain't sure that they all feel like I do about holdin' this."

"I sweep him about him, and glow come to his heart. I've been a fool—a lot. Nobody can guess what it would mean to me to see this woods crippled."

Somehow, I haven't been able to tell myself since they started it over there. I don't think I like it, but to know it's foolish, but that saw gets buzzin' in my dreams and I'm fightin' right hard for this, Bill. Bill's people and me, we're gonna make it come over and see you when you stepped in. Bill, we don't ever say much, us Bushwhackers, but tonight I couldn't help but be glad."

First, by the bright copper color of the tea when steeped.

Second, by the delightful, refreshing flavor.

Fourth, by the satiating richness.

Fifth, by the economical strength.

Ancient Inventions Used on Motors

First Universal Joint Was Developed About 1020 A.D.

Perhaps the oldest design used in the modern automobile is that of the universal joint which in principle is identical with the first universal developed by Cardan around 1020 A.D. Such joints are used in all modern automobiles and trucks in order to allow the propeller shaft to revolve and at the same time move up and down and sideways relative to the rear axle. The axle bounces up and down according to road conditions, but the propeller shaft must connect this bouncing part with another unit attached to the frame of the car.

Proportional Representation

Council of Ottawa Board of Trade Supports New Method of Election.

The principle of proportional representation was unanimously endorsed at a largely-attended meeting of the Council of the Ottawa Board of Trade held recently. While the meeting was private it was announced afterwards that the decision to support proportional representation for Ontario was unanimous, and that as a result of the meeting a telegram had been sent to the chairman of the special committee appointed by the Ontario legislature last session to inquire into the subject as follows:

"The Council of the Ottawa Board of Trade are in hearty accord with the system of proportional representation and wish you all success in your investigation of the subject."

Dem's Our Sentiments, Too

The High River Times remarks: "There still exists in this neck of the woods individuals who consider it the bounden duty of the publisher of a newspaper to support their views whether it be racial, creed or political, and when they cannot see eye to eye they come in with a handbawm air to 'stop my paper,' as if such an occurrence would cause suspension of the newspaper in question." This party engaged in the business of publishing tends to give the impression that it is stock and trade and long as our advertising contracts are backed up by reputable citizens we will publish the same, irrespective of what the local gentry may say, or do. The advertisements located in our last issue called forth criticism from a few individuals, who for some unknown reason expect the publisher to make sacrifices for a cause in which they happen to be interested, but for which they themselves in the course of their daily business refuse to make the sacrifice. We would like to get particular of the merchant, grocer or druggist, who would refuse to sell their goods to a man they knew to be interested in the cause of the Indians. In conclusion, we present to the Moderation League what they are and what the citizens of Alberta and not engaged or interested in the brewing or distilling of whiskey, and such being the case the advertisement was inserted and we have no apologies to make with regards to it. We have yet to learn of any farmer refusing to sell his barley for brewing purposes and furthermore we have never heard of any brewer in the province of Alberta refusing to accept his usual commission on express parcels of liquor. Oh, no! That's a different proposition."

The Calgary Albertan in a recent issue referred to the "dishonest advertising" offered to a few newspapers in Alberta by the Moderation League of Alberta. Personally we fail to see where dishonesty is shown in the aforesaid advertisement, which reads: "Vote no and you will get your beer." If the Albertan desires to establish a name for itself for strict honesty we would advise that at least the editorial page of that paper be conducted with a stricter regard for the truth, than it has shown of late, not only with regards to prohibition, but on other questions which it undertakes to discuss.

Meat Next

— BY DR. FRANK CHANE

No; the next object of attack by the terrible army of progress, now that they have routed alcohol, will not be tobacco. It will be meat.

Let the meat eaters tremble. It is well to keep in mind that it was not far from the pale-faced meddlers who took away our darling Hippie, it was the cold-blooded scientist.

It was the towzle head professors with their test tubes and formulae in their laboratories, it was the life insurance actuaries with their deadly array of figures and their mysterious but unexplainable law of averages, it was the efficiency experts in mill and factory—these are they who snatched the boozie from the banqueting table and interfered with the glorious personal liberty of the son who chose as a free-born American citizen to break his mother's heart or the husband whose mode of free self-expression was to break his wife's head.

And now—Meat. Not because meat is not good food. It is too good. It is wasteful. Also dangerous.

All the nourishment the human body derives from a breakfast the beef creates, save from the grains it eats. Why pass it through another animal in order to reach man? Why would the man not better eat the grain direct? Why the interlude of slaughter?

The particular stumbling element we get from meat is protein, and the international commissions who studied the matter during the war are quite unanimous in their verdict, says the Life Extension Bulletin, that we need far less protein than has heretofore been supposed.

Professor Sherman points out that the experiments made to test the amount of protein we need gave misleadingly high results, for various reasons.

The verdict of the commissioners that they need less protein is not due to the fact that they need meat, but to the fact that they do not wisely choose meat substitutes. They turn to fruits and vegetables, which are necessary, but which do not supply the needed protein.

The real substitute for meat, and the foundation of an intelligent diet, is the cereal grain. There is a certain protein enough for normal nutrition. And if these be added fair amounts of cereals, fruits and vegetables, we have a sufficient diet. Meat then becomes simply an expensive luxury.

The bulletin concludes that "meats vary in their protein content according to the cut, but would average about 20 per cent. Oatmeal contains 16 per cent, and bread and cereals about 10 per cent. About 12 ounces of oatmeal or 5 ounces of meat are required to furnish the protein each day for an average man. Less is really required, as protein from other sources is sure to be included in the diet. The old idea that 'lashing' of meat are necessary to support 'pep' and vitality is pretty well exploded."

In future the city of Fernie will be able to purchase hydro-electric power at the maximum rate of two cents per kilowatt hour from the British Columbia & Alberta Power Company. The previous rate to consumers was fifteen cents per kilowatt hour. We understand that local concerns are also becoming interested in the new venture, which proposes to serve the district from Pincher to Cranbrook, power being developed from Bull River, B.C.

Once more the long arm of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police has reached into the northern wilds in the interest of justice. This time the scene of action was Belcher's Island, on the east coast of Hudson Bay, and the principal in the case was an Eskimo who killed another member of his tribe.

Cowley Happenings

(By Felix)

Miss Janet Fowler, of Ogall Creek, is at present enjoying a visit to her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Hector McDonald.

Miss A. Jennings has accepted the position of secretary of the H. Y. P. C., left vacant by the resignation of Miss Fox.

Ed. Royle, superintendent of Mine Rescue Car No. 1, reports that 9 men are taking training in mine rescue work and 7 taking mouthy training, all employees of Hillcrest Collieries.

Miss E. Fox left on Sunday night for Calgary, but rumor has it "only for a short time." No doubt Hudson Bay and Parkers will be included in the visit and, well, there is a house shortage in Hillcrest.

Mr. Clark and family, from London, England, arrived a few days ago with intention of settling here in Peaceful Valley. This lady was unfortunate enough to lose her husband in the mine disaster of 1914.

Another of those enjoyable dances was held at the Masonic hall on Saturday night. But the question is asked, "Why restrict these affairs to invitations?"

It is refreshing to see the large amount of English-speaking persons coming into Hillcrest just now, with intention of settling down. At one time Hillcrest had the distinction of being the only English-speaking mining camp in the West. With all due respect to the splendid people we have of foreign birth, we must admit there are quite a few that would be better elsewhere. It is to be hoped that the new comers will get houses, which seems to be the problem now.

Would it not be well for the H. Y. P. C. to post up notices around the village setting forth the aims and objects of the club. Several inquiries have been heard of late from young people, such as "What's the Club for?" "Who are they?" It is good for a few getting together just for a good time amongst themselves. If the aims of the Club are only to give a little hop now and again it can only be destined to failure. If the writer mistakes not, the first club ever formed of this kind was in the city of Vancouver, as an auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A., an institution which, in spite of adverse criticism, is doing splendid work all over the world. Young people, if you want to make your club a real success you will have to get out and work. There is lots of material to work upon and you'll find some of it around the booz joints and pool halls. Send invitations—don't shut yourselves up in a box.

"Mother," said Tommy, "is it correct to say 'water a horse' when he is thirsty?"

Europe's Triangle of Suffering

At the earnest request of the Canadian Red Cross, Mr. Herbert Hoover, director of relief for Europe on behalf of the allied nations, came to Canada to launch the appeal on behalf of the British Empire War Relief Fund. That fund is being raised throughout the British Empire to combat disease and distress in Europe. The Canadian Red Cross, through its provincial divisions, will make the appeal. The Canadian Red Cross, through its local authority in the world upon European conditions, spoke with the quiet conviction of one whose message was sufficient in itself. In communicating he said the folk among the Canadian people to further emphasize in Canada might be misinterpreted as regarding the Canadian people to further sacrifice. He said he realized that the sacrifice of the Canadian people, individual by individual, had been far in excess of that of his own people, but he said he knew that the charity of the Canadian heart was inexhaustible, and he felt there would be no resentment against his suggestion if the Canadian people would like to contribute to the problem that confronts the western hemisphere towards the east.

THE GREATEST NEED

"To me," Mr. Hoover said, "the greatest problem of the human heart in the world today is this problem of a myriad of waifs and orphan hungry children throughout Central Europe. The number of these children is now not less than 10 million of helpless hungry children in its track, and upon their well-being must depend the upbuilding of Europe. There are literally millions of children in these countries sunk so low in destitution that they cannot be saved. They must receive extraordinary

It is said that the majority of women in the United States voted for Wood and Cox. One wonders why they didn't all vote for Harding.

A WORLD PROBLEM.

"Our present problem over the forthcoming winter appears to be about 8,500,000 to 9,000,000 children. We feel that if we could find among all the nations $1,000,000,000, we could solve this problem. Surely it is a heavy burden for a whole world to bear. It is a heavy burden for charity, but it is an equally important necessity that I have no doubt that charity will find it. These children are the obligation of every man and woman in the Western Hemisphere, for we have suffered less, but beyond that they are a charge on the heart of the entire world. If we are to preserve the foundations for the future stability of Europe, if we are to keep open the love for humanity, our duty is clear before us."

An Armistice Day Appeal

In a few days people the world over will celebrate the second anniversary of the signing of the Armistice, that great event which signified the final triumph of the cause of freedom over the powers of a military autocracy bent upon world domination and a denial of those great principles for which liberty-loving people have struggled and died throughout the centuries of the past.

Armistice Day is one which should never be forgotten, nor its significance to the whole human race ignored. It should be indelibly written upon the hearts of men and women everywhere, and should be indelibly stamped into the minds of the children now and in generations to come. More than this, each recurring anniversary of the Armistice will be marked by some act of a notable character by the people in each of the countries allied in the war; some act in the nature of a "freewill offering," a tangible and practical expression of thanks for the victory achieved, an annual recurring day upon which some little sacrifice will be made by the many in all nations for the benefit of those whose misfortunes and sufferings call loudly for human sympathy and practical assistance.

So far as Canada is concerned, the Red Cross proposes some such national observance of Armistice Day this year, and it is fitting that the world's greatest and most widely known humanitarian organization should thus lead the way. Along with all voluntary organizations of an international character, the Red Cross has been officially recognized by the League of Nations as a proper body to exercise functions and discharge important administrative duties of an international character, and it has been appealed to by the Council of the League of Nations to undertake as its first great work the checking of the terrible epidemic of disease now threatening a large portion of Europe, and relieve the insatiable suffering and distress which accompanies and follows that epidemic. Hundreds of thousands of people are stricken and dying of typhus, tuberculosis and hunger, while positively millions of children, thousands upon thousands of whom are orphans, lack food, clothing, shelter and care and are dying in appalling numbers.

To meet this awful need, and if possible prevent the spread of typhus throughout the world, the League of Red Cross Societies, which now includes thirty different countries, is sending doctors, nurses, medicines, food and other necessities into the stricken countries. In order that the British Empire, always foremost in works of civilization and humanity all over the globe, may discharge its full duty in the present great emergency, a British Empire War Relief Fund has been inaugurated under the patronage of H.M. the King, and with the support of all political parties and humanitarian organizations. This fund is to be administered by the British Red Cross Society in co-operation with the League of Red Cross Societies.

The people of the Empire are asked to contribute $10,000,000 to this Fund, and of this amount $500,000 has been indicated as the amount which Canada ought to supply. The Canadian Red Cross has assumed the task of raising this half million dollars, and Armistice Week has been designated as the period during which an appeal will be made to the Canadian people to make contributions, the aggregate, will total that amount.

The efforts of the Canadian Red Cross during and since the war have, very properly, been largely confined to work for our own soldiers and sailors, and in the direction of promoting health, preventing disease and relieving distress and suffering at home. Now, in the face of untold horrors and suffering, a world appeal comes through the Red Cross to the Canadian people. It is an appeal to which the Red Cross organization could not turn a deaf ear. It is a call to service which cannot be resisted and must not be denied. The spirit of the Red Cross is not narrow nor selfish; the whole world is its field and all peoples of every clime and color have a claim upon its sympathy and support.

In Western Canada the appeal on behalf of the British Empire War Relief Fund will be made to the people through local branches of the Red Cross and in the newspapers. All contributions will be sent to Red Cross headquarters in the respective Provincial Divisions, and then forwarded through the head office for Canada to the British Red Cross.

As was the case on all occasions in the past, it is now hoped and expected that the warm-hearted, open-handed generosity of the people of the West will result in a prompt response to the appeal on behalf of the disease-stricken and starving men, women and, more especially, children of Europe.

Baskets Were Made By Blind Soldiers at St. Dunstan's.

His Majesty King George has done a roaring trade as fruit seller this season. So great has been the demand for the King's grapes from the famous vine at Hampton Court Palace, which H.M. of Works announced would for the first time be sold this year to the public, that the greatest part of this year's crop of 600 bunches was speedily disposed of. The grapes were offered to the public at $1.25 a pound, in baskets made by blind soldiers at St. Dunstan's Hostel. So many orders were received by telephone, mail and telegraph, that many times the crop could have been disposed of, but a proportion of the grapes was reserved for visitors to the gardens. During the war the grapes were distributed by the King among the wounded soldiers in hospitals, but before that they were always reserved for His Majesty's own table.

Prisoners of War

Many Thousands of European Soldiers Still Awaiting Repatriation.
Although it is now nearly two years since the armistice was signed, that there are still 500,000 prisoners of war, half-starved, half-naked, awaiting repatriation in Germany, Russia, Siberia and Turkistan, must shock the conscience of the world.

Generally speaking, they are nationals of governments overthrown either by the war or by revolution thereafter. Most of them are Austrians, Czechs, Romanians, Poles and Serbs. Others are Russians, taken in the great battles on the eastern frontier. Some are Russians held in France.

The break-up of the Austro-Hungarian Empire left thousands upon thousands of former subjects without a government to care for them. The swift changes in power kept the succeeding governments engrossed in problems at home, with little thought to spare for lost war prisoners.

Prolonging Life of Shoes

Care Drying of Damp Footwear—Big Item in Economy.

By the exercise of a little care the life of leather shoes may be considerably prolonged, says Thrift Magazine. It is a well-known fact that if a wet shoe is placed too close to a fire, the interior of the sole is sometimes ruined before the surface of the leather shows appreciable signs of injury. Wet shoes should be dried slowly and shoe trees inserted to prevent the shoes losing their shape and becoming uncomfortable.

It is economy to keep at least two pairs of shoes, wearing them in rotation. Some shoe manufacturers claim that two pairs of shoes worn alternately outwear three pairs of shoes worn consecutively.

Field Crops of Canada.

The total field crops of Canada will this year reach nearly 4,250,000 bushels, while the products of hay and corn will exceed 25,000,000 tons as compared with over 1,000,000,000 bushels of grain and 20,000,000 tons of hay and corn in 1919, according to official figures. "It is estimated that the price of 1920 wheat will average $2 per bushel. The field crops of Canada represent about $170 per head of the population, as compared with $110 per head in the United States.

Hasten The Day.

A speeding up of production all round will hasten the advent of the glad day when a dollar will buy a dollar's worth of goods. A tendency on the part of the workers towards greater efficiency is noted in the papers. In this way alone can the present scale of wages and the shorter working hours be maintained. Altogether the prospects are bright on this continent for easier living conditions.—Hamilton Spectator.

Britain's Invisible Profits

Explain Her Enviable Position As Creditor Nation.

Despite increasing floating obligations and the "balance of trade" being heavily against them the British are not worrying lest they become a debtor nation. There is no danger of it, so long as the debit trade balance is more than offset by "invisible profits."

These profits—in this connection more significantly called "invisible exports"—have always been the explanation of Great Britain's enviable position as a creditor nation; she is, perhaps, the only securely established-one in the world. Great Britain is the world's great "middleman," importing vast quantities of goods to be reshipped from the warehouses in which they are received.

Last Brigade from Swan River to York Factory

By O-GE-MAS-ES (Little Clerk).

(Copyrighted.)

To Mrs. A. M.—

A Foreword: It is a hard master for an old Fox Trader to take a pen and try to show the modern reader what the old days were like. But, when one is asked by a most charming and talented lady, and when she becomes persistent, why then nothing remains but to comply with her requests.

In the spring of 1874 being at that time an apprentice clerk in the honorable Hudson's Bay Co.'s service, and rejoicing in a salary of £30 a year, with the usual Clerk's allowances (yearly) of 200 lbs. flour, 200 lbs. sugar, 20 lbs. tea, 10 lbs. of rice and 10 lbs. of chocolate; with two gallons of wine and two of spirits. I received orders from the Chief Factor, at Fort Ellis, to take charge of Shoal River House, which post was situated about sixteen miles from the mouth of Swan River, on the north side of Shoal Lake. Reaching there with two dog teams in the latter part of March and after complying with all formalities incidental to taking over a post, I settled down to my first independent charge with feelings of great pride and no small sense of responsibility.

Shoal River House was charmingly situated on a sandy bar immediately fronting the lake, while to the west and south showed up the grim ranges of the Porcupine Mountains, densely covered with spruce. The fort itself was enclosed with a stout wall of hewn timber. Heavy gates opened directly in front of the Master's house, and on each side of the enclosure were the usual store houses and its quarters.

Training later kept me busily employed until the opening of the lakes and rivers, when official orders reached me to engage as many boatsmen as possible to take charge of the York Factory, my post to be the starting point of the Brigade. Finally, having secured every able-bodied man within a radius of 100 miles, the post began to assume appearance of a little town; long rows of Indian Tepees were erected along the ridge east of the fort, dancing, gambling and love-making were the order of the day. Time was short and who could tell how many would return after their trip to the sea. My time was fully occupied, every man who signed a contract for the voyage, was entitled to draw half his wages in advance, and there being no cash in circulation, this was paid out of the store goods. Finally the head guide, old Lion-like McNab, came in from Fort Pelly with more men and the last of the boats and assumed absolute charge of the Brigade. Woe betide the unlucky white who disputed his authority. Down he went with the first thing that came to hand. Now followed several days of hard work, seeing that every boat would have its full complement of provisions, coverings, etc. — Then carefully assuring the crews, for it is known to the uninitiated that every York boat is manned by eight men and a steersman. The heavy oars used are a load for a man, so to get better mastery of the stroke the whole crew rise and fall when rowing. The steersman standing on a platform in the stern sheets, controls every motion of the boat with a huge sweep, this being replaced by a rudder when sailing, a single mast and large square sail being used when the wind is favorable.

Guide McNab fixes the time of starting for the next day and confirmation increases. The shop which stood open from early morning till late at night, swarmed with men, women, children and dogs, for with every man engaged came a whole tribe of hangers on, all expecting a little of his bounty. At last the time for departure came. A few steady old hands had pulled the boat up to the beach and fenders consisted of furs, goose quills and casuarina for ships to Britain; pemmican and dried leather for posts en route to the Bay. There were twenty men missing. Then McNab arranged himself with his tribe, requested us to join in a hunt, and one by one we started for the deserts some in Tepees under piles of bedding others sheltered by dark dunes skins, others in the woods. Out they were pulled, McNaib's voice ringing out in trumpet tones, a strange mixture of English, French and Indian oaths, predominating. Some were dragged, some carried to the boat and all were pitched in with small ceremony. At last everything was ready, and though much beyond the time fixed for starting, off we pulled with the cheers of the men and shrill yell of farewell from Indian women and children, the eight boats passed out of sight round the point.

My orders were to accompany the Brigade until relieved, so leaving a trusty man in temporary charge of the fort, taking another and light bark canoe to assure my return, I encamped myself in the storm sheets of the guide's boat. Nine miles down the Shallow River brought us to Lake Winnipegosis. It was beautifully calm, the different boats tying with one another for leadership. Camp was ordered at Graves Point, a flat, sandy island in the middle of the lake. A trusty man and canoe, with a raft of logs, were sent to shore to make a fire. The camp was soon established, the boats swept round the point, weather beaten and worn in appearance, but the veteran crews, pulling like lions. For was not this the home of many of them? After many hand shakings and congratulations, my winter outfit was put ashore. Some sorrowful faces are seen, two men missing, one lost in a rapid, the body never found; another carrying his two pieces over a rocky portage slipped and falling, crushed his chest; a rude cross marks the spot.

Leaving two empty boats with me, the remainder of the Brigade pulled out that evening carrying the precious outfit for Forts Pelly, Ellis, Qu'Appelle and many a far-off outpost. This was the last time goods were brought to the Swan River district via Hudson's Bay and over many portages to their final destination. But history repeats itself. The route which our forefathers was the chief means of access to the plains and forests of the North-West, has fallen into abeyance with the advent of the transcontinental railroads, now again is reasserting itself, and in the near future will again become a mighty factor in the transportation problems of Western Canada.

were lying sea sick in the bottom of the boat. It was a delightful experience to me having been used to sailing from my youth up.

Towards evening we made the mouth of the Fairfort River and a few minutes pulling brought us up to the post, where, alas, a senior officer was waiting to take charge of the outfit. I was busily engaged that evening in giving over the various accounts. An early start was made next morning, and away went the Brigade with many kind exhortations of regard at parting with their little clerk of Ogemasses, to give the Indians title.

Then, with my man and canoe, we started coasting along to Shoal River House. And so for months of the summer passed by one day a youngster, breathless with excitement, rushed into the fort, crying, "Champlain, Champlain," and it was known that the fort was safe. For afar off could be heard the ringing of the mighty oars and at last, one by one the boats swept round the point, weather beaten and worn in appearance, but the veteran crews, pulling like lions. For was not this the home of many of them? After many hand shakings and congratulations, my winter outfit was put ashore. Faint and Dizzy Spells. Weakness and Shortness of Breath.

You can generally tell when the heart is affected by the faint and dizzy spells, palpitations, irregular beating, smothering sensations, weak, sinking, all-gone feeling, choking, sensation, etc.

Many men and women become rundown and worn out when otherwise they could be strong and healthy if they would only pay some attention to the first sign of heart weakness.

Now, however, do so as follows to make the heart regain strength and vigor, regulate its beat and restore it to a healthy normal condition:

Mrs. A. S. Drake, Paris, Ont., writes: "I have used on towards the second box of Dr. C. H. Mayo's nerve powder and find they have done me good. I had those fainting, dizzy spells, once in a while, and also weakness and shortness of breath, and when I had them I was shocked at them. I could hardly sleep without sitting up in bed. When walking too fast I would have to stop and try to catch my breath. I feel a lot better since taking the powder. I am grateful that they have helped me wonderfully, as I have improved very much."

Mr. Milburn, Head of Nervous and Mental Diseases, Toronto, Ont., writes: "I have had a number of cases of fainting, dizzy spells, etc., and have found Dr. C. H. Mayo's nerve powder to be of great service. I have had many patients improve greatly under its use."

Mr. J. Milburn, Head of Nervous and Mental Diseases, Toronto, Ont., writes: "I have had a number of cases of fainting, dizzy spells, etc., and have found Dr. C. H. Mayo's nerve powder to be of great service. I have had many patients improve greatly under its use."
